Library construction is alive and well with 47 academic and 238 public library buildings completed

A Grand Design

Library Buildings 1988

Swedenborg Library, Academy of the New Church, Bryn Athyn, Pa.

By Bette-Lee Fox with
Ann Burns, Michael Rogers, & Reginald E. Pruitt

Each year LJ approaches the architectural issue with expectations of more projects, bigger projects, and more funding than ever before. We are never disappointed. In 1988 we feature 47 new academic projects (a 42 percent increase over 1987) and 238 public projects (98 new buildings and 140 additions and renovations) completed between July 1, 1987 and June 30, 1988.

What continues to amaze is the number of buildings in progress ("Projects in Progress" begins on page 60): there are 796 buildings coming our way within the next four to five years. The asterisked (*) projects in our tables are those projects that were in progress in 1987.

The largest academic project this year is a beauty: the Benjamin S. Rosenthal Library of Queens College of the City University of New York. Designed by the architectural firm of Gruzen Samton Steinglass, it cost $54.6 million and occupies 252,000 square feet.

The largest new public projects are the Kern County Library, Bakersfield, California ($19.5 million) and the Virginia Beach Central Library, Virginia ($12.3 million). The largest public additions and renovations are also in California: the City of Cerritos Public Library and the Redwood City Public Library, each about $8.2 million.

Perhaps it is in keeping with the pace of the Eighties that more libraries are being built in shopping malls. Several new and renovated projects are sharing space with merchants and boutiques. Most of the libraries find the locale ideal for patrons and use of the libraries has increased. Another, perhaps more unsettling fact is that several libraries have been built out of renovated churches.

The money for buildings is still predominantly from local government, to the tune of more than $186 million. Total funding reached $243 million in 1988, up from $217 million in 1987. There is definitely money out there.

The future of libraries appears bright as far as construction is concerned. To all current and future library buildings and the profession they support: à votre santé!

Bette-Lee Fox is Managing Editor; Ann Burns & Michael Rogers are Staff Editors; and Reginald E. Pruitt is Production Editor, LJ

Library Projects in Progress

When LJ was first approached with the idea of collecting information on library building projects not yet completed, we considered it a challenge and a means of making our annual architectural feature even more comprehensive and useful. Four years later, the challenge has assumed monumental proportions. From an initial listing of 395 buildings in 1985, we are listing 796 projects in 1988. We cannot take credit for this extraordinary increase in building around the country. We just give the facts, ma'am.

The list of individual projects submitted follows with the stage(s) of progress checked accordingly.

Pre-design stage:

1. Preliminary investigation
2. Program filed
3. Project funded
4. Architect selected

Design stage:

5. Design stage in progress
6. Construction documents completed
7. Bidding complete
8. Contracts awarded

The date following the library name represents the estimated year of completion.
